[Part 2]

I 以下の英文は、あるラジオ番組の一部です。英文を読んで、最も適当なものを選んで記号で答えなさい。

Vincent: Hello. I'm Vincent.

Ellen: And I'm Ellen.

Vincent: Do you know shampooing could become a thing of the past?

Ellen: What do you mean?

Vincent: According to a recent study by Nielsen, a consumer analysis company, because more people are working from home and fewer people are smoking, they are using shampoo less often than before.

Ellen: I've heard that shampoo sales have recently dropped dramatically as more and more people change their hair washing habits in the UK.

Vincent: Yes. Moreover, according to the ecosalon.com website, regular shampooing may be the cause of *greasy hair. Shampooing dries out the *scalp, so the head produces more oil, which require other hair shampoos to get rid of the new oil. This site says: "Shampooing less often will naturally reduce *sebum production on the scalp." I wonder if the shampoo market will become smaller in the future...

Ellen: I see. However, I don't think that's necessarily true. Many people still say that shampoo is good for their hair. Mark Coray, former president of the National Hairdressers' Federation in the UK, says that there is no benefit to not washing hair. He also said, "Shampoo is not *abrasive or irritating to the scalp. The ingredients in shampoo help your hair to look shiny. It may start to look shiny because of the oil buildup in your hair, but ... it doesn't *cleanse itself."

Vincent: Oh, I've read that article before too. Others have also mentioned the importance of shampoo. In London, The Belgravia Centre, a hair loss clinic, said, "Just rinsing your hair is not very effective after exercising, saunas, or any activity that makes your scalp sweat.” It added, “Rinsing alone will also not remove bacteria or clean the excess oil from your scalp if you have greasy hair.”

Ellen: There seems to be a lot of arguments, but until we come to a definite conclusion, (A) I feel too uncomfortable not shampooing my hair after sweating it out at the gym!

greasy:脂っぽい scalp:頭皮 sebum:皮脂 abrasive:すり減らす cleanse:清潔にする

- 1) What happened to shampoo sales in the United Kingdom recently?
 - (A) They were the same as last year.
 - (B) They went crazy.
 - (C) They hit a record high.
 - (D) They went down.

- 2) What does the scalp produce less of if you shampoo less?
 - (A) dandruff
 - (B) oil
 - (C) hair
 - (D) soap

- 3) How many benefits did Mark Coray say there were to not washing hair?
 - (A) 7
 - (B) 2
 - (C) 0
 - (D) 5

- 4) Put the most appropriate sentence in (A).
 - (A) I'll shampoo.
 - (B) I'll stop shampooing.
 - (C) Shampooing is too much trouble.
 - (D) I want to take a bath and relax.

II. 英文[A][B]を読んで、(1)~(6)の間に答えなさい。

Pigs are smart and can play video games. The researchers tested their gaming skills. The researchers asked four pigs to play a simple game with different levels. They moved the *cursor by moving the joystick with their nose. If they did that, they got a treat. The lead researcher said that the pigs could understand what to do.

The research was very extensive. The pigs spent many days playing the game. During the last 50 rounds, the pigs played the game on three different levels. “The pigs clearly understood the relationship between their actions, the joystick, and what was happening on the screen,” the scientists said. The researchers hope to understand how pigs learn and understand.

[B]

More and more children are suffering from “eco-anxiety”. This is a condition that causes people to worry a lot about the future of the planet and life on earth. Teachers want more eco-lessons in schools. They say that schools need eco-lessons for all age groups. According to the ecology group, only four percent of school children were well informed about the environment.

The Earth Rangers Campaign Group said that environmental concerns affect children in many ways. They feel afraid. The group wants to help children with their negative emotions: fear, despair and hopelessness. It wants school activities so that children can teach their parents about protecting nature. “Children are at the forefront of climate change,” it said.

- 4) What does eco-anxiety cause people to worry about?
- (A) children
 - (B) animals
 - (C) Earth
 - (D) whales
- 5) What feelings might children have besides hopelessness?
- (A) confusion and loss
